Attention All Customers! California Proposition 65 Statement

Pursuant to the newly updated California Proposition 65 guidelines now in effect, all companies selling or supplying products into the State of California must comply with the new Warning Label Standards. Any product which may contain or produce chemicals known to the State of California which cause Cancer, Reproductive Harm, or Birth Defects must be warned by means of a label of which the State of California has pre-approved for use noting such harm.

California Proposition 65 (a.k.a. Prop 65) only applies to any end user within the State of California. No other states are affected by this guideline for use or sale with this warning attached.

Under the guidelines of Prop 65, Johnny Ray is hereby EXEMPT from having to use the Prop 65 Warning Label System, or to label our products or packaging altogether, as is outlined in the Prop 65 Exemption for Business Size.

You can choose to either label or continue to use non-labeled Johnny Ray product based upon this notification. Again, this applies only for products used or sold into the State of California. Please feel free to use this letter as notification of the exemption status for all Johnny Ray products for use in California.

In addition to this exemption statement, all Johnny Ray Products are completely safe to use under any normal condition for which they are intended, and have always been so throughout the years. There have been absolutely no known causes of harm, as the Prop 65 Warnings proclaim, from the use of any of our products for any length of time during our company's long history.

Please feel free to use, sell, and distribute our products as you normally have in the past, regardless if the products arrive to you with or without a warning label attached.

If you have any questions or concerns, please feel free to contact us immediately, or visit www.P65Warnings.ca.gov for more information.
